Health and safety must form a key element of any organisation's risk management strategy. Complementing Garwyn's established risk management solutions, we offer a range of health and safety consultancy and training services through our specialist division.

A tailored solution

With an exceptional track record helping clients save money by applying the best practice in health and safety, our extensive hands-on experience means we can address the needs of any organisation, from the largest corporate operating from multiple sites to a small SME based at a single site. Established in 2001, our experience in audit and assessment, behavioural safety, training, supporting improvements, claims, litigation and occupational health places us in the unique position of being able to fully understand any issue or problem and respond appropriately to a client's needs.

Improving performance and saving money

Central to our ethos is the clear recognition that failure in health and safety not only impacts on performance and productivity but could mean significant financial penalties. Our goal is always to deliver improved health and safety performance which will, in turn, save costs.

Training you can trust

We also offer a comprehensive range of accredited training courses, delivered by our experienced team of tutors and run both in-house at clients facilities and at our training centre.

Why choose Health and Safety Consultancy from Garwyn?

- We provide tangible savings across a business operation
- We improve health and safety performance
- We protect a business from fines and penalties through legal compliance
- We facilitate effective management of a supply chain

Our vision is simple: To help our clients achieve health and safety excellence in order to enhance business performance, save operating costs and reduce risk.
